THE OCTOBER ATLANTIC.

The October Atlantic has no serial story, but instead gives one long short story called A Florentine Experiment, by Constance Fenimore W. Olson, one of the best of American writers of stories; and another, Deadland, by W. H. Bishop, author of Detmold. Dr. William James, brother of Henry James, Jr., writes a very interesting and thoughtful article on Great Men, Great Thoughts, and the Environment. Socialistic and other Assassinations, by James Henry Hayne, brings together many curious facts for those who study social phenomena. The second part of the Intimate Life of a Noble German Family is quite as entertaining as the first part, and gives us a most interesting insight into the lives and ideas of the higher classes of Germans. The careful and valuable Reminiscences of Washington this time relate to President Tyler's Administration. Richard Grant White discourses of the prevalent habit of drinking in England, terming it, A National Vice. The political article discusses the Business Issues of the Presidential Canvass. People of a New England Factory Village, is a paper of genuine interest. Mr. Whitier has a characteristic, beautiful poem, Comeiy, and there are also poems by Robert Louis Stevenson, Helen Barron Boettick, I. Oppenheim, and Francis Ekin Allison. Several important recent books are reviewed in the careful and readable style for which the Atlantic is distinguished, and the Contributor's Club contains several bright little essays.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

"Senator Withers of Virginia, who served in the rebel army until forced to retire because of wounds, for which he gets no pension, is the 'Rebel General' who is at the head of the Pension Committee in the Senate, and who is averse to allowing any bills to pass allowing pensions to Union soldiers, as represented by Mr. Belzhoover, the Democratic member of Congress from Pennsylvania, who gave that excuse why a certain pension bill could not pass.—Exchange."

The following partnership agreement was drawn up by a colored lawyer at Little Rock, Arkansas: "Dabbs is to certify that Dabbs is Carter's podner. Dabbs is to do actin' podner an' Carter is to do silem podner. Dis is also to certify dat so soon ez Dabbs quits bein' de action podner de whole stot 'long ter Carter, an' when Carter quits bein' de silem podner, widout anudder 'greement, de stot all 'long ter Dabbs."

More Bible has come to light. An exchange says: The papyrus manuscript recently discovered in the cave of a hermit near Jerusalem, and said to be the work of St. Peter, has been submitted to a committee sent out by the Biblical Society of London, and they have come to the conclusion that the papyrus is in reality the work of the great apostle. They have offered $100,000 for the document, in vain.

Jennie B won the mile dash at Sacramento Monday, in 1:42%, the best time ever made on the track. She will be here next week.

Alice Harrison says Sara Bernhardt is the "female Barnum of the day."

"Rhapsodic ejaculations" is the name that Tolstoi gives to his ravings.

Pistols at Kentucky Picnic.

Louisville. Sept. 13.—A serious shooting affray occurred at a picnic about twelve miles from Wenton on Saturday. A difficulty arose between some drunkards about some trivial matter, which, before its termination, involved in it three brothers named Smith, three brothers named Hammond, and a half brother of the Hammonds named Bernard Acree. The Smiths proved more expert with their pistols, and the boy Acree, 18 years old, was shot and instantly killed, and the Hammonds were all wounded; two of them, Jonathan and Sam, the attending physicians say, are mortally injured. The Smiths and Hammonds are cousins, and Sam Hammond is a brother-in-law to the Smith boys. The latter have avoided arrest. They are sons of G. W. Smith, a Justice of the Peace, and a very respectable citizen.

Good luck for Kansas.
From the Utah Observer.

On the emigrant train this morning were nine girls, sisters, en route to Kansas, where they will join three brothers, settled in that State. The girls were dressed alike, and their family resemblance was striking.

PACIFIC COAST NEWS.

Clouds of grizzlies passed over Coffey, W. T., last week, taking a south-westerly course.

The Enterprise says that many persons are now returning from Bodie. Those who are so situated as to be able to leave, will not winter in that camp, as there is still much fear of pneumonia.

The receipts of Cole's circus are thus given by the Los Angeles Herald: Anaheim, one performance, $4,000; San Bernardino, $5,000; Los Angeles, afternoon and evening, $12,000; total, $21,000.

Irrigators in Los Angeles city are charging the following rates: From sunrise to sunset, $1 per head; sunset to sunrise, 50 cents per head; for use of zanja for irrigation outside of the city limits, $2 per head, sunset to sunrise, $1.

The Downieville Messenger tells of a couple of men who made a trip into the mountains. It says: "Near Gold Lake the snow was twenty two feet deep. In one of the small lakes the ice was ten feet thick, capped with snow."

Says the Montana Herald: A magnificient caribou was lately shot on the Blackfoot range. He weighed 1,200 pounds, stood 21 hands high, and, as indicated by his teeth, was 21 years old. From the top of his head to the end of his nose he measured four inches longer than a flour barrel. The antlers, beautiful and perfect, are in the velvet.

September 19th, at Knight's Landing, Frank Prather was shooting and exploded a two-pound flask of powder as he was loading. The powder flashed up into his face, burning him badly, and it is feared that he will lose the sight of his eye. His brother Willie, who was near by, had higues knocked out of his hand by the force of the explosion.

Result of Kicking Against the Rail-road.

One of the mules in Scott's team got his left hind foot caught between the rails, while crossing the C. P. track yesterday. The mule could scarcely believe his own senses when he found his hoof apparently seized and held fast by some invisible power. For a few moments he was paralyzed with astonishment. Then all his energies stirred within him and ran right down into his heels. He concentrated all his energy in the imprisoned leg, and hurled a mighty kick at the unseen foe. The hoof came off, and the freed leg went flying out into space. Like a flash the limb was flexed into the first position, ready for further business. The mule's countenance assumed a satisfied expression, as though he was convinced that some execution had been done. The animal will be turned out to grass, until a new hoof grows on. A second hoof is always small and weak, and inferior for the higher kinds of kicking.

Shot in the Shoulder.

At the "Slough," between Mud and Pyramid lakes, last Friday, Spanish Frank was shot in the shoulder by Jack Leathers. The story is that Frank and another man were playing cards, and Leathers interfering, was assaulted by Frank. Leathers then drew a pistol and fired, wounding Frank in the shoulder. He also struck Frank over the head. The wounded man was taken to Wadsworth for treatment. His wound is not dangerous. No arrest has been made.

ALFALFA.

How It is Grown in Washoe Valley.

SOME FRESH CUDS OF INFORMATION FOR FARMERS TO CHEW.

Sowing—Irrigation—Yield—Suitable Soil—Cutting and Curing—Grasshoppers—The Season—Prices, Etc.

In the course of his wanderings in search of truth last Sunday, a GAZETTE reporter stopped at the ranch of W. W. Morton. That experienced agriculturalist was at home, and the newspaper man made known his thirst for information upon the subject of alfalfa. A correspondent had recently written to the paper, asking for the publication of such crumbs of knowledge, relating to the cultivation of that kind of forage, as the staff might be able to give. The reporter upon whom the duty of satisfying this want devolved made inquiries, and was told that Mr. Morton is one of the best hay sharpers in the valley. The farmer confessed some knowledge of alfalfa, having grown that crop for upwards of ten years. After a preliminary stroll through the orchard, during which the reporter ate more green fruit thereof than was good for him, the two sat down to the interview. "Suppose," it was suggested, "that we begin at the beginning, and take up the question of BEDDING."

"All that is necessary," said Mr. Morton, "in the case of sagebrush land is to clear it off and make it smooth and level. Then sow the seed and harrow it in. Ploughing isn't needed. The quantity sown varies from 10 to 20 pounds to the acre. I have tried all ways. A crop may be had the first year, but that is rare. The roots must have time to get down well into the ground before the clover will grow well. They go down very deep. There was a cellar dug on my neighbor Doremur's place, two years from the seed, were found at a depth of 8 feet. They go a good deal deeper than that, I believe. One seeding is all that has ever been found necessary in this valley. There is alfalfa on Doremur's place that was planted 12 years ago, and the crop from it is as good as ever. He has had one fair crop this season, and has a prospect of a second. There seems to be no reason why it should ever go out.

IRRIGATION.

is, of course, necessary on these meadows. After sowing, the ground should be thoroughly wet. Once a week, thereafter, is often enough to turn the water on. An inch to the acre, with careful use and under favorable circumstances, is enough. Sometimes an inch and a half is needed. Twelve hours is long enough to keep the water on at one time. There is more clover hurt by too much water than there is injured by getting too little. If water is allowed to stand too long on the ground, it kills the plant. Dryness will get a second crop, but it will be light. Grasshoppers can be prevented from hatching out on grass and until after the crop has been gathered, by keeping the field flooded with water. Water doesn't hurt grass. My grass was saved that way this year. We turned off the water about two weeks there were lots of young hoppers on the ground and in a month they were swarming. As we usually get only one crop of grass hay, they did little harm in those fields.

THE SUCCESSION OF CROPS

is best managed by giving the plant's rest after each cutting. The land should be allowed to get pretty dry after hay-making. The water should be kept off, for, say, two weeks. This has been tested by experiment. Most farmers turn on the water immediately after haying. I have tried both ways and find it better to wait awhile. Mr. Hill, who has charge of the Agricultural society's grounds, tried the two ways on two different fields this summer. The one he let have a rest will give a fair second crop. The field irrigated right after haying will give no second crop. I know of two kinds of alfalfa. One has a paler blossom than the other, but there seem to be no material difference between them. One is called Dutch and the other Chili.

THE PRESENT SEASON

has been a bad one for alfalfa, owing principally to the grasshoppers. The total yield in Washoe valley this year will not amount to more than one-half the average. It will be less than that with me. The grass hay crop has been as good as usual. It is true that the price of clover hay has risen, but that won't make up for the shortness of the crop. Clover hay is now worth $10 to 12 in stack. I have been offered that for nine—mixed clover and timothy—and so has Wm. Haynes. Deemers sold forty tons last week at $10."

CLOSING OBSERVATIONS.

Mr. Morton could probably have imparted much more interesting and valuable information about alfalfa, but, by the time the above had been all noted down, the reporter began to feel that he had become almost a clover expert himself, and went away early since. People who buy hay of me find that their stock fatten on it, and want to buy of me again. It pays to cut early. Clover cut in the bud makes hay better than that in the bloom. It is better every way. I can tell which is which the instant I stick in a fork. There is no difference in quality between the first, second or third crops, so far as I know.

CURING.

is a matter for individual judgment. It all depends upon the state of the air. The main thing is to dry the hay thoroughly. The heavier the growth the longer it takes to dry. We mow in the morning, and rake in to winnow as soon as the clover wilts, generally in three or four hours. Then it is cocked and left to cure. It is taken from one to three days to cure it ready for stacking.

THE CROP

will average four or five tons to the acre in good seasons. Three crops are generally cut. One year I cut four, and three every year until this.

I once got a second crop in late frost, after the first cutting. Late frost sometimes injure the yield. Early seasons give the best crop, usually. Alfalfa is the best crop, I believe, that a farmer can grow in the valley. It gives the best yield with the least outlay. A mixture of alfalfa and timothy hay is preferred for feed, but they should be grown separately. When the two are sowed together the second crop is small. The sod formed by the timothy seems to choke the clover. I have tried both ways. If I were going to sow my fields again nothing but alfalfa should go in them. Alfalfa is growing more and more popular every year. In Virginia, three years ago, dealers used to sell two bales of grass hay to one of alfalfa. Now it is two of alfalfa to one of grass.

THE SOIL FOR ALFALFA

should be deep, clayey or gravelly ground, with a subsoil of clay or gravel. Thin land on the hills is bad for clover. The roots want to go down deep. Soil with a hard pan underneath at no great depth makes a poor crop. The soil of this valley is superior for alfalfa. It is very deep and has a bottom of gravel and boulders. In digging a well I went down thirteen feet before reaching a bed of gravel. I think

SUGARVILLE NEWS.

The Political Pot-Cheap Fruit—An Editor Married—A Teacher Arrested for Cruelty—Large Wheat Field—An Unfortunate Depositor, etc.

SUGARVILLE, Sept. 20, 1880.

A. B. Mosely died very suddenly last Friday evening of heart disease. He had just returned from the springs in Honey Lake, where he had been bathing for the rheumatism. His funeral took place on Sunday, under the auspices of the Masons. He leaves a wife and a child two years old, to mourn his untimely death.

Politics is beginning to boom. The Republicans held their convention last Saturday. They present to the people for Sheriff, F. S. Storey; Clerk, W. P. Hall; present incumbent, who seems to have a lease of it, as he has held it for seven years; District Attorney, C. G. Kelley; Treasurer, P. R. James; Coroner and Public Administrator, Robt. Johnson; Surveyor, W. D. Minkler. By some the ticket is considered weak, while others are highly elated over it. The untried will hurl their ticket into the political arena in two weeks. They have plenty to choose from, and might put up a good ticket, as most every one in So-aville has his name in the papers for some office.

The fruit crop is very heavy this year. Apples are selling loose at 1 1/2 cents, plums 2 cents, and few buyers.

Most of the owners of large orchards are using the early apples for cider and vinegar.

E. A. Weed, of the Lassen Advocate, led Miss Alice Stevens, a late employee of the Advocate, to the hymen altar yesterday. The happy couple departed for Greenville as is in the getting out of the first number of the Greenville Bulletin. We wish them, says, oscillate between the places, serving as a pendulum for the two partners.

A little breeze was created here this morning by the Sheriff's serving process on Mr. Williams, the principal of our school, for alleged cruelty to one of his scholars, Miss Delia Peachy. The case will not doubt be interesting, as most of the scholars will be called on for their story.

Harvesting is about over. Some of the farmers have threshed. The crops are lighter than last year. C. W. Moore of Johns'ville has threshed 190 bushels from 400 pounds of wheat. Last year from two pounds he raised, of the same wheat, 476 pounds; thus in two years, 193 bushels. The narrow gauge railroad is receiving but little attention here at present.

There will be many of our citizens at your Fair this year.

Several drunks have just been put in the lockup. The last is Mike Murray, one of the depositors in the Reno Savings Bank. He lost his all, saved by hard labor, and in consequence he is almost crazy, and when he is under the influence of the average tanglefoot of this burg, is very noisy. He went up for 46 days.

CAXTON.

Longley's Mare Wins the Mile Trot in 3:11 1/2.

The stream of travel which ebbs and flows along the Virginia road was setting strongly out towards the race track this morning. Not half those who started out from town arrived in time to see the trot. The starters were A. A. Longley's black mare and J. G. Bradley's brown mare. The trot was a single mile heat in harness for a purse of $20. The horses got a fair start. Bradley's mare drew ahead from the start. She was the favorite in the pools, the betting being about two to one. Longley's mare pegged away as steadily as a clock, and at the half mile crept up and lapped the brown. The horses kept well together on the third quarter, until Longley's mare collided the brown and forced her off her feet. The black led the way in, passing under the wire in a magnificent burst of speed, with Bradley a length behind. Time: 3:11 1/2.
